Meek Mill has been living on probation for nearly his entire musical career, but a Philly judge's recent decision to throw him in prison for a violation has yielded national outrage, culminating in a star-studded rally Monday night calling for the judge to recuse herself. But community members question whether Meek himself is to blame. Read it all inside and on metrophilly.us.

ANOTHER ROY MOORE ACCUSER STEPS FORWARD

1 Senate Majority Leader Mitch McConnell led a chorus of establishment Republicans on Monday urging Roy Moore, the party's Senate candidate in Alabama, to quit the race as a fifth woman came forward with allegations Moore had sexual contact with teenage girls decades ago. Beverly Young Nelson said Moore sexually assaulted her when she was 16 and he was a prosecuting attorney in his 30s. At a New York news conference, the tearful Nelson said Moore groped her, tried to pull her shirt off and shove her head in his lap, then warned that "no one will believe you" if she told anyone. "I was twisting and struggling and begging him to stop," said Nelson, a waitress at an Alabama restaurant where Moore often ate when the incident occurred. "I had tears running down my face." For more, see page 12.

QUAKE HITS IRAQ, IRAN, KILLING MORE THAN 450

2 Thousands of homeless Iranians huddled against the cold late on Monday, a day after at least 450 people were killed in Iran's deadliest earthquake in more than a decade, state TV said. Rescue teams kept up search operations for dozens trapped beneath the rubble of collapsed houses in towns and villages in the mountainous area of the western province of Kermanshah that borders Iraq. Iran's English-language Press TV said more than 450 people were killed and 7,000 were injured when the magnitude 7.3 earthquake jolted the country on Sunday. Local officials expected the death toll to climb as search and rescue teams reached remote areas of Iran. The quake was felt in several provinces of Iran but the hardest hit province was Kermanshah.

HATE CRIMES RISE FOR SECOND STRAIGHT YEAR

4 The number of hate crimes committed in the United States rose in 2016 for the second consecutive year, with African-Americans, Jews and Muslims targeted in many of the incidents, the FBI said on Monday in an annual report. There were 6,121 hate crime incidents recorded last year, an almost 5 percent rise from 2015 and a 10 percent increase from 2014, the Federal Bureau of Investigation's Hate Crimes Statistics report said. It did not give a reason for the rise. Black Americans were targeted in about half the 3,489 incidents based on race, ethnicity or ancestry, the report said, followed by whites who were targeted in 720. About half the 1,273 incidents that involved religion were against Jews. Muslims were targeted in 307 religion-based crimes, up 19 percent from 2015 and double the number in 2014.

ESPN 'SPORTSCENTER' SHOW ON SNAPCHAT

5 Sports broadcaster ESPN launched its flagship "SportsCenter" program on messaging app Snapchat on Monday, reimagining the show that provides sports highlights and commentary into a short-form series. The new show deepens the relationship between ESPN parent Walt Disney Co. and Snapchat parent Snap Inc. The sports network, which has made Snapchat content since 2015, is trying to reach a younger audience, while the social media app, whose messages disappear after viewing, is adding more content in an effort to grow its user base beyond its core youth demographic. The partnership is a two-year deal and Snap and ESPN will share revenues, Snap said, though it declined to give specifics. "SportsCenter" will air twice a day on Snapchat during weekdays, and once a day on weekends.

#FreeMeekMill protest: Rapper's supporters rally outside courthouse

Meek's prison sentence for a probation violation has been heavily criticized.

sam.newhouse@metro.us

Hundreds of supporters of Philly native and rapper Meek Mill rallied Monday night outside the Criminal Justice Center, where the rapper got prison time last week, a sentence that prompted national outrage.

Meek, born Robert Williams, was found to have violated probation stemming from a 2008 gun possession after an arrest for three recent incidents: an arrest for riding his dirt bike, a scuffle with aggressive fans at the St. Louis airport and testing positive for Percocet.

"Robert's case is the one people will look at and talk about the most," said Mustafa Rashed, a "Rally for Meek" representative, "but this happens every single day in courtrooms across America. … The disproportionate unfairness people of color face in the criminal justice system, from arrest to sentencing, is what this rally is about."

VIPs who spoke at the rally in support of Meek included Philly legend Julius Erving; Eagles players Malcolm Jenkins and Vinny Curry; rapper Freeway; and state Rep. Jordan Harris, an advocate of criminal justice reform.

"While the case involving Meek Mill maybe the catalyst for this action, the fact is there are many of us to whom the system are just numbers and not names," Harris said. "This is about raising awareness and calling for action upon an unjust system that is in need of substantive reform."

Judge Genece Brinkley last week sentenced Meek to two to four years in prison against the recommendation of city prosecutors and probation officers. Brinkley also sent Meek away for five months in 2014 after a previous probation violation.

"There is an appeal that is being filed," Rashed said. "If there is even a little bit of impropriety, we think it is incumbent upon the judge to recuse herself so that the case can stand on its own merits and she is not part of the story."

Other supporters of Meek were harsher on the judge.

"Judge Brinkley is one of the worst in the city when it comes to sending people to prison on petty probation violations," said Clarise McCants, a criminal justice reform activist with Color of Change . "Judge Brinkley is unfit to oversee this case and must recuse herself immediately and allow another judge to take over. If she refuses to step aside, her supervising judge must take immediate action. Thousands have already signed the petition saying Judge Brinkley must go. … We need to be calling on local courts, judges, district attorneys, and state legislators to use their power to stop filling prisons with people who have committed no other crime than minor probation and parole violations."

Attorneys for the hip-hop rapper who rose from the streets of North Philly to become a national hip-hop star have claimed she has a personal bias against the rapper.

Meek's current lawyer, New York defense attorney Joseph Tacopina, claimed to the Inquirer that Brinkley is biased against Meek because they are from rival groups in the neighborhood, and because he refused to cover a Boyz II Men song with a shoutout to the judge. Meek's supporters also claim she "has repeatedly crossed personal and ethical lines by encouraging Meek Mill to leave his music label for a Philadelphia-based firm to which she has personal connections."

Brinkley and Philly courts have not commented on those allegations.

"Because this matter is subject to future litigation, there will be no comment at this time," said Gabe Roberts, communications director for Philly courts.

What the Meek Mill case says about Philly

Is the American prison system one of rehabilitation or one of condemnation? That's a question that plagues black men trapped in the American judicial system every day.

Philadelphia rapper Meek Mill, 30, from North Philly, is one black man dealing with the complexities of a justice system that many believe is more arbitrary than fair.

Recently sentenced to two to four years in state prison by Common Pleas Court Judge Genece E. Brinkley for violating his parole, Mill is at a crossroads in both his professional and personal lives.

Meek Mill's legal situation is polarizing: Some critics believe his thread of parole violations and run-ins with the law make his sentence a fair one, while supporters believe Mill is another victim of an unjust system and according to one of his lawyers, an overzealous judge.

Mill has received support from celebrities like rapper and entrepreneur Jay-Z and comedy superstar Kevin Hart. Perhaps most notably, an online petition, #JusticeForMeek, calling on the state parole board to pardon the rapper, has received hundreds of thousands of signatures.

Like Meek Mill, City Councilwoman Cindy Bass is a North Philadelphia native and proudly represents her part of the city.

Bass is aware of the possible implications that Mill's sentence can have for the future of other people dealing with Philadelphia's judicial system.

"I respect the authority of our judges," Bass says. "I do think it's interesting that the defendant's attorneys may file an appeal on this matter, and I'm curious to see how that plays out. I think it's unfortunate all the way around, but I am very interested in the legal aspects of the case, what that will mean for the defendant now, and any future impacts that may have on the judicial system here in Philadelphia."

As a community leader from another part of Philly, South Philadelphia native Simon "One Punch" Carr can identify with Meek Mill in a way most people cannot.

A former boxer, Carr also served prison time before changing his life upon getting out and becoming a mentor to young people in the process.

"When you are dealing with children and you are considered a role model and children look to you, judges feel like you are in a position to lead the youth, so they will try to make an example out of that," Carr said.

While odds may be stacked against him, Carr doesn't believe this is the end for Meek Mill.

"Meek is showing through his flaws that he is human, even though you can't keep making the same mistakes," he said. "I do feel how he handles this situation will ultimately dictate how he's viewed in the future among the people. It will be either be in terms of redemption or just saying he got shot after shot, time after time, and he blew it."

A BRIEF TIMELINE OF MEEK MILL'S LEGAL TROUBLES

2008 - Meek Mill is arrested for possession of a gun at a corner store, and charged with assaulting police. In a 2015 Billboard interview, he claimed he was severely beaten by Philadelphia police officers, and the assault charges were made up to justify the injuries he sustained. Released in 2009, Mill gets probation for five years.

2011 - After signing with rapper Rick Ross' Maybach Music Group imprint, Meek Mill had success with his single "I'm A Boss," and his debut album "Dreams and Nightmares" reached the No. 2 spot on Billboard charts.

2014 - Tweets criticizing the prosecutor and probation officer handling his case land Mill back before Judge Genece Brinkley. He is locked up for another five months, in part due to traveling out of town to perform without permission and missing phone calls from his probation officer.

2017 - Mill is charged with violating his parole again for three incidents, being arrested for driving his dirt bike recklessly in New York and broadcasting it on Instagram, testing positive for Percocet, and a scuffle with overaggressive fans in the St. Louis Airport. Fed up with Mill, Judge Brinkley sentences him to two to four years in state prison.

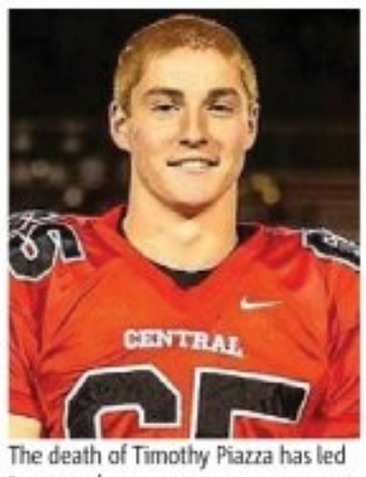
Recovered Penn State hazing death video leads to fresh charges

A prosecutor brought fresh charges against 12 members of a Pennsylvania State University fraternity on Monday in the death of a 19-year-old student after examining recovered surveillance-camera video of an alcohol-fueled initiation rite that turned deadly.

Timothy Piazza died on Feb. 4 after a drinking game at the Beta Theta Pi fraternity house in the town of State College as part of a hazing ritual, in which would-be members face degrading challenges.

A total of 17 fraternity members are now facing various charges, including involuntary manslaughter, aggravated assault, hazing and furnishing alcoholic beverages to a minor under the age of 21.

Announcing the new charges, Stacy Parks Miller, Centre County's district attorney, said the recovered footage, which had been deleted after the fraternity learned police were planning to seize the video, clearly showed criminal conduct.



The death of Timothy Piazza has led to more charges. FACEBOOK

The video captured games involving the rapid consumption of wine, beer and vodka in the fraternity house's basement during a party for newly accepted members and showed Piazza being given at least 18 drinks over a period of one hour and 22 minutes, Parks Miller said.

"He never once obtained those drinks for himself, brothers came up and gave them to him," she said at a news conference at the courthouse in Bellefonte, referring to fraternity members.

Piazza, a student from Lebanon, New Jersey, seriously injured himself after becoming intoxicated at the party, taking two tumbles down flights of stairs. He died two days later.

Braxton Becker, one of the fraternity members, deleted the video footage while State College police were in the room to seize the recording equipment, and he faces separate charges of evidence tampering and obstruction of justice, Parks Miller said. His lawyer, Karen Gwyn Muir, did not immediately respond to a request for comment.

The deleted video was recovered with the help of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, Parks Miller's office said. REUTERS

'Hannity' fans destroying Keurig coffee makers to protest company's withdrawn ads

Some "Hannity" viewers tweeted videos of themselves destroying their Keurig machines under the hashtag #BoycottKeurig. GETTY IMAGES

Fans of Fox News' "Hannity" are trying to punish Keurig, the makers of coffee-pod machines, for withdrawing ads, by posting videos of their coffee makers being destroyed.

The company announced it was dropping its sponsorship of the show after Sean Hannity seemed to defend Alabama Senate candidate Roy Moore's purported sexual relationship with a 14-year-old girl when he was 32.

On Thursday, The Washington Post reported that Moore, then an assistant attorney general in Alabama, had pursued and sexually touched a 14-year-old in 1979. On his radio show that day, Hannity said the relationship was "consensual." That night on his Fox News show, Hannity said he "misspoke" and "was absolutely wrong" but then discussed the accusers possibly being paid or politically motivated.

On Friday, Angelo Carusone, the president of Media Matters for America, a watchdog group that has previously organized advertiser boycotts of Hannity's show, tweeted Keurig about sponsoring "Hannity." Keurig replied that it had stopped an ad from airing on the show.

Hannity's supporters then began tweeting in defense of the Fox News host, and some attached videos of themselves destroying their Keurig machines under the hashtag #BoycottKeurig. The methods of destruction included dropping from a multistory building, setting on fire and smashing with a golf driver.

In terms of the bottom line, CBS MoneyWatch wrote Monday that the international company shouldn't get too jittery about the protest, noting that the brand's devotees dwarf the "Hannity" nightly audience of 3.2 million: "Even if all of those 'Hannity' viewers owned a Keurig machine, it would still represent a fraction of Keurig's consumer base," said CBS. New Arthritis Painkiller Works on Contact and Numbs the Pain in Minutes

New cream works faster and is more targeted than oral medications. Key ingredients penetrate the skin within minutes to relieve joint arthritis pain. Users report significant immediate relief.

By Robert Ward
Associated Health Press

BOSTON – Innovus Pharmaceuticals has introduced a new arthritis pain relief treatment that works in minutes.

Sold under the brand name Apeaz™, the new pain relief cream numbs the nerves right below the skin.

When applied to an arthritic joint, or a painful area on the body, it delivers immediate relief that lasts for hours and hours.

The powerful painkilling effect is created by the creams active ingredients, three special medical compounds.

Anesthetics are used in hospitals during surgery. They block nerve signals from the brain so that patients don't feel pain and they work fast.

The anesthetic found in Apeaz™ is the strongest available without a prescription.

The cream form allows users to directly target their area of pain. It works where it is applied. The company says this is why the product is so effective and fast acting.

"Users can expect to start feeling relief immediately after applying," explains Dr. Bassam Damaj, President of Innovus Pharmaceuticals.

"There will be a pleasant warming sensation that is followed by a cool, soothing one. This is how you know that the active ingredients have reached the affected joint and tissue."

Works In Minutes

For arthritis suffers, Apeaz™ offers impressive advantages over traditional medications. The most obvious is how quickly it relieves pain discomfort.

The cream contains the maximum approved OTC dose of a top anesthetic, which penetrates the skin in a matter of minutes to numb the area that's in pain. This relief lasts for several hours.

Published pre-clinical animal studies have shown that the ingredients in Apeaz™ can also prevent further bone and cartilage destruction.

There are also no negative side effects like from oral medication. Apeaz™ delivers its ingredients through the skin. Oral medications are absorbed in the digestive tract. Overtime, the chemicals in pills can tear the delicate lining of the stomach, causing ulcers and bleeding.

When compared to other arthritis medications, Apeaz™ is a fraction of the cost. At less than $2 a day, the cream quickly is becoming a household name.

Those with terrible arthritis in their hands and fingers, love how easy Apeaz™ is to open. The jar fits in the palm of the hand, which makes it much easier to use.

Instant Pain Relief Without a Prescription

Many Apeaz™ users report significant improvements in daily aches and pain. Many more report increased flexibility and less stiffness. They are moving with less pain for the first time in years, like Henry Esber, an early user of Apeaz™.

"I've tried more pills than I can count. I've also had a handful of cortisone shots. Nothing is as effective as this product. With Apeaz™, I get relief right away. I rub a little on my my hands. It keeps the pain away. It also prevents the pain from getting really bad. It's completely changed my life."

How It Works

Apeaz™ contains the highest, non-prescription OTC dose of a medical compound that fights pain on contact. When applied to the skin it goes to work within minutes by penetrating right to the source of your pain, numbing the nerve endings.

"This is why Apeaz™ is so effective for people with arthritis pain. It reduces pain while adding an additional potential layer of joint support," explains Damaj.

A New Way to Treat Pain

Although Dr. Damaj and his team say that their cream is the fastest and most effective way to relieve arthritis pain, they believe there is still a reason to take joint pills. The most effective are those which help to further lubricate, strengthen and support the joints.

Apeaz™: Quick Acting Pain and Arthritis Cream is Now Available Without a Prescription

That's why every container of Apeaz™ comes with ArthriVarx™, a breakthrough supplement that's taking on joint support in an entirely new way.

ArthriVarx™ works on your joints, making it the perfect companion to Apeaz™.

"ArthriVarx™ contains special compounds published to lubricate the joints and connective tissues that surrounds them. With daily use, they improve joint health and can give an extra cushion," explains Dr. Damaj.

"When combined with Apeaz™, it becomes the perfect system to tackle arthritis. While the anesthetic component of Apeaz™ is working on the outside, relieving pain on contact, ArthriVarx™ is working on the inside, adding cushioning to the joints."

A Powerful Combination For Arthritis and Joint Pain

With daily use, Apeaz™ plus ArthriVarx™ helps users live a more vital, pain free life without any of the negative side effects or interactions associated with oral drugs.

By delivering fast, long-lasting, and targeted relief from joint pain and supporting long-term joint health, Apeaz™ and ArthriVarx™ is the newest, most effective way to tackle your arthritis pain.

You can now enjoy an entirely new level of comfort that's both safe and affordable. It is also extremely effective, especially if nothing else has worked well for you.

Italy misses World Cup for first time since 1958

The Italians will miss World Cup 2018 in Russia after falling to Sweden in the playoff.

JOE PANTORNO
@joepantorno
joseph.pantorno@metro.us

Be prepared for an odd World Cup. For the first time in almost 60 years, the Italians will not be appearing in a World Cup after dropping their two-legged playoff to Sweden by an aggregate score of 1-0.

Italy's streak of 14-straight World Cup appearances was the third-longest active streak. Brazil has been to the World Cup 20 consecutive times while Germany has been to 16 straight.

This is the 12th time Sweden has qualified for the World Cup and the first time they've made it since 2006 in Germany when they made the Round of 16.

Sweden's lone goal came via Jakob Johansson in the 61st minute of the first leg in Sweden and did just enough to keep Italy at bay in Milan on Monday.

While the Azzurri were desperate, their attack to find a single goal was underwhelming. Though one of their best attackers, Lorenzo Insigne of Napoli spent the entire match on the bench.

The first half was dominated by controversy as there were three legitimate penalty shouts.

The Italians felt wronged when Marco Parolo was taken down in the box by Ludwig Augustinsson without a call. But the ill will toward the officiating shifted when Swedish shouts for two fairly clear handballs went unsatisfied.

Ciro Immobile provided Italy with its best chance of the half when his effort was cleared off the line after Swedish goalkeeper Robin Olsen got a piece of it.

Chances did fall to the Italians near the Swedish goal, but a team that lacked any sort of attacking firepower was unable to capitalize during a second half that did see the hosts dominate most of the stanza.

While the fallout from this failure will result in what is expected to be a swift removal of Gian Piero Ventura as manager and restructuring of the Italian federation, it is a disappointing way for the international career of Gianluigi Buffon — the greatest keeper in Italian history — to end.

Honduras accuses Australia of spying by drone

Honduras accused Australia of spying on their training sessions with a drone on Monday, as tensions heated up ahead of Wednesday's decisive World Cup playoff match.

The Honduran National Football Federation posted on Twitter 18 seconds of footage of a drone flying above Sydney's Olympic Stadium, where the team trained after their long flight from central America.

"Australia spied on Honduras's official training session from a drone, causing discomfort among the Honduran team and delegation," FENAFUTH said on its Twitter feed.

Honduras face the Socceroos at the same stadium on Wednesday night for the deciding second leg of their intercontinental playoff with the scores level at 0-0 after a tightly fought first leg in San Pedro Sula on Friday.

"We weren't involved," said a spokesman for Football Federation Australia (FFA).

Honduras boss Jorge Luis Pinto was also involved in a row with the media at the start of the session when he tried to close training before the 15 minutes of open access allowed under FIFA rules.

"They should show us some respect, we respected them in Honduras so they should show us respect here," he shouted in Spanish at photographers and cameramen.

Colombian Pinto also suggested on his arrival in Sydney that someone in the Honduran media had leaked tactical details to Australia, broadcaster Televicentro reported.

According to Honduran newspaper La Prensa, Honduras team management sent up drones of their own in 2016 to ensure no unauthorized parties were monitoring their training sessions. REUTERS

Roy Moore threatens to sue Washington Post over sexual misconduct reports

Some of the reports include allegations of sexual misconduct with a 14-year-old girl when he was 32.

LENYON WHITAKER
@MetroPhilly
letters@metro.us

Alabama Republican Senate candidate Roy Moore says he plans to sue The Washington Post over their report alleging he was involved with sexual relationships with teenagers when he was in his 30s working as an assistant prosecutor. One of the allegations includes a sexual encounter with a 14-year-old girl when Moore was 32.

During a campaign event Sunday night in Huntsville, Alabama, Moore addressed the reported allegations during a speech, saying it was an attack on his campaign.

"The Washington Post published another attack on my character and reputation because they are desperate to stop my political campaign. These attacks said I was with a minor child and are false and untrue – and for which they will be sued," Moore said.

Since The Washington Post reported the allegations against him, Senate Majority Leader Mitch McConnell said Moore should quit his senatorial bid after the allegations of him having sexual contact with a 14-year-old. "I believe the women, yes," McConnell said to reporters Monday in Kentucky. "I think he should step aside."

During an interview on "Meet The Press," Republican Sen. Pat Toomey has also suggested Moore should step down.

"You know, this is a terrible situation, nearly 40-year-old allegation, we'll probably never know for sure exactly what happened," Toomey said. "But from my point of view, you know, I have to say, I think the accusations have more credibility than the denial. I think it would be best if Roy would just step aside, he added."

Since the allegations were reported, several women including Katie Couric, Sarah Silverman and Alyssa Milano are responding to Moore's allegations by posting photos of themselves as teenagers to show the world what it looks like to be 14 and are using the hashtag #MeAt14 on Twitter.

Leigh Corfman was 14 years old when she said she met Moore. Corfman and her mother were in court for a custody hearing when Roy Moore introduced himself. According to Corfman, Moore started a conversation with them and offered to watch Corfman while her mother went inside for the hearing.

According to Corfman, Moore, 32, asked Corfman for her phone number. A few days later, Moore picked her up near her house and drove her to his house and told her how pretty she was and kissed her. On another visit, Corfman says he took off her shirt and touched her through her underclothes while guiding her hands to touch him through his.

Moore told Sean Hannity on his radio show that he did know Corfman but denies there was any sexual misconduct with her or any other woman.

During a Veterans Day event Saturday, Moore called all the allegations "fake news," according to CNN. He added by saying there are ongoing "investigations" to uncover the motives of The Washington Post and the truth will come out in the next few days.

"I believe the women. ... I think he should step aside."

Trump asks China for help with UCLA basketball players held for shoplifting

President Donald Trump personally asked the president of the Republic of China's Xi Jinping to help with the shoplifting case involving three UCLA men's basketball players, including LiAngelo Ball, brother of Los Angeles Lakers rookie guard Lonzo Ball.

Ball, a guard, along with forwards Cody Riley and Jalen Hill were arrested the day before Trump's two-day state visit for allegedly stealing sunglasses from a Louis Vuitton store next to the team's hotel. The trio did not play in the game against Georgia Tech, missing out on a win in Shanghai, The Washington Post reported.

Ball, Riley and Hill did not fly home with the team after Saturday's game, ESPN reported, and could be forced to remain in Hangzhou for another "week or two." A source told ESPN that there is surveillance footage of the three players shoplifting earlier in the week from three stores inside a shopping center, which houses Louis Vuitton, Gucci, Yves Saint Laurent and Salvatore Ferragamo stores.

Xi promised Trump that the UCLA players will be treated fairly and expeditiously, an anonymous U.S. official told the Post.

This official also indicated that charges against the players have been reduced and that the case is heading toward a resolution.

Lonzo Ball said his father, LaVar Ball, called him Friday night and told him "we are handling it out here, so that's a good sign," ESPN reported.

A source told the Los Angeles Times that a representative from the team and Pac-12 are staying with the players. LiAngelo Ball's family is in Hong Kong marketing $495 Big Baller Brand shoes, according to a tweet from LaVar Ball.

LiAngelo Ball declined to comment when reached by phone at his hotel on Wednesday, Reuters reported. The others could not be reached.

Sources told Reuters that police had released the three on condition they remain at their hotel during the legal process.

Often China will deport foreigners suspected of having committed relatively minor offenses.

The U.S. State Department and UCLA athletics officials have declined to say how long legal proceedings might take, according to Reuters.

Under 1 percent of people studied experienced sudden cardiac arrest during (or immediately after) sexual activity. GETTY IMAGES/ISTOCKPHOTO

This is how likely it is you'll have a heart attack during sex

It doesn't tax our tickers as much as we think.

MEAGAN MORRIS
@MetroPhilly
letters@metro.us

Some potential sexual partners might promise heart-stopping sex if you slip between the sheets with them, but a new study shows that's probably not going to happen.

Jokes aside, the risk of sudden cardiac arrest and death is a concern for people with heart disease — including during sex — but the chances are "extremely low," according to senior study author Dr. Sumeet Chugh, medical director of the Heart Rhythm Center at the Cedars-Sinai Heart Institute in Los Angeles.

For the study, researchers analyzed data from 4,500 people who experienced sudden cardiac arrest, or the condition where the heart stops abruptly.

Under 1 percent of people studied experienced sudden cardiac arrest during (or immediately after) sexual activity, about 34 people out of the 4,500. Most of the incidents — around 94 percent — occurred in men around 60 years old on average, according to the study presented during the American Heart Association's Scientific Sessions meeting California on Nov. 12.

Women only accounted for two of the incidents.

Chugh said the results surprised him, but in reality sex isn't as aerobically challenging as some people believe. A 2011 study by researchers at Harvard found that sex is easier than working out on a treadmill — and the heart rates of the men in the study rarely rose above 130 beats a minute.

That's about equivalent to walking up two flights of stairs.

The more disturbing finding, according to Chugh and his team, was that other people who witnessed the sudden cardiac arrest, like a sexual partner, only performed potentially life-saving bystander CPR about one-third of the time. Bystander CPR happens when a witness performs CPR until medical personnel arrive — and it can double or triple a victim's survival rate, according to the American Heart Association.

"It stands to reason that if CPR is learned [and] performed by all sexual partners, there is a good possibility of improving survival," Chugh added.

So, it's probably a good idea to sign up for a CPR class before you get into your next relationship.

Jurors in NJ senator's bribery trial told to keep talking

The judge in the bribery trial of Democratic U.S. Senator Bob Menendez of New Jersey told a jury on Monday to continue deliberating after the panel said it was unable to reach a unanimous verdict, according to defendant's spokesman.

District Judge William Walls sent the jurors home for the day and told them to resume their deliberations on Tuesday, Steven Sandberg, a representative for Menendez, said in an email.

A representative for the court clerk's office and the U.S. Department of Justice did not respond to a request for comment.

Menendez is on trial on charges that he accepted private flights, campaign contributions and other bribes from a wealthy patron, Florida ophthalmologist Salomon Melgen, in exchange for official favors between 2006 and 2013.

Lawyers for Menendez and Melgen have told the jury in Newark that they did nothing wrong and their actions stemmed from a close, brother-like relationship.

If Menendez is convicted, Republicans will be presented with a chance to gain a seat in the closely divided U.S. Senate, as his replacement would be named by Republican Gov. Chris Christie. Christie will remain in office until Jan. 16, when Democratic governor-elect Phil Murphy will take his place.

If found guilty of all charges, Menendez could face a sentence of up to 20 years in prison. REUTERS

Here's why IUDs could reduce your risk of cervical cancer

Study shows birth-control method may combat "impending epidemic."

MEAGAN MORRIS
@MetroPhilly
letters@metro.us

Intrauterine devices — more commonly known as IUDs — do a pretty amazing job at preventing unwanted pregnancies, but a new study shows they have another power as well.

Researchers at the Keck School of Medicine of the University of Southern California examined data from 16 clinical trials of more than 12,000 women around the globe and found that using an IUD could decrease the chances of cervical cancer diagnosis 33 percent.

There were 528,000 cases of cervical cancer diagnosed worldwide in 2012, according to the World Health Organization, with over half dying from the disease. Even worse: The WHO also predicts that the disease will skyrocket over the next two decades with over 756,000 cases — and 416,000 deaths — by 2035, many of these in developing countries without adequate access to treatment and the human papilloma virus (HPV) vaccine.

"A staggering number of women in the developing world are on the verge of entering the age range where the risk for cervical cancer is the highest — the 30s to the 60s," said lead study author Victoria Cortessis, PhD. "Even if the rate of cervical cancer remains steady, the actual number of women with cervical cancer is poised to explode.

"IUDs could be a tool to combat this impending epidemic."

Study researchers believe that just having the IUD in the uterus helps decrease risk of cervical cancer.

There are five types of IUDs available in the United States, some made of plastic that time-release hormones to prevent pregnancy, and another made with copper and no hormones. The T-shape device is inserted into the uterus and creates an inflammatory reaction, preventing sperm from attaching to an egg.

This inflammatory response possibly has another benefit, according to the USC team. They believe that because the body boosts the immune system to fight off the IUD and, infections like HPV may also be warded off.

Research into the connection is still in the beginning stages, but the study authors are hopeful this discovery could eventually decrease the number of cervical-cancer deaths around the world.

"If we can demonstrate that the body mounts an immune response to having an IUD placed, for example, then we could begin investigating whether an IUD can clear a persistent HPV infection in a clinical trial," said gynecologic oncologist and study coauthor Dr. Laila Muderspach. "The results of our study are very exciting. There is tremendous potential."

BY EXAMINING DIFFERENT CLINICAL TRIALS, RESEARCHERS FOUND THAT USING AN IUD CAN DECREASE CHANGES OF CERVICAL CANCER DIAGNOSIS BY 33 PERCENT.

Ziga-zig ah! Spice Girls may be reuniting

Please let this be true.

Good news: The Spice Girls are apparently eyeing a reunion.

And because a Spice Girls reunion isn't a Spice Girls reunion with every damn Spice, Mel C. has reportedly been working with Simon Fuller — the girl group's former boss — to bring Victoria Beckham, Mel B, Emma Bunton and Geri Horner (née Halliwell) back together for a one-off special and a compilation record in 2018.

Every time there are talks of a reunion, Beckham — who, as Posh Spice offered the least, but now in 2017 is somehow the most famous of the five — shuts it down. Earlier this year, she said on the "Today" show that their reunion at the Olympics was basically enough. "I think you need to know when it's time to actually say, 'That was great, we achieved a lot' and everybody moves on."

Well, Posh, we must say — moving on is for suckers. Give the people what they want! Please?

Jenny Slate gushes about her BF

Jenny Slate is talking about her boyfriend on Twitter and it's totally Chris Evans, right?

In case you missed it, Slate and Evans — who gushed about each other tons after their breakup — have been spending lots of time together. Most recently, the "Captain America" star posted a video of his dog, uh, "singing" with Slate laughing off camera. So yeah, they're not exactly being coy.

Now Slate is tweeting nonsense about boyfriend and turtlenecks, so let's just call it official, eh?

"My boyfriend does many dreamy & generous things," she writes. "But number 1 in my mind right now is how he celebrates my new turtlenecks/lets me show him my online shopping spoils & cheers me on."

It's nice when two rich, conventionally attractive people like each other a lot and are thirsty about it. It's a good reminder that celebrities are just as basic as the rest of us.

Celebrities: They're just like us.

Marc Maron says Louis C.K. was a lyin' man

Celebrities are still reacting to last week's exposé on Louis C.K., in which he was accused by five women of sexual misconduct. Marc Maron, a longtime friend of C.K.'s, promised to address it on his podcast — "WTF With Marc Maron" — and he's kept good on that offer.

On the show's Nov. 13 episode, Maron said that he asked C.K. about the sexual misconduct rumors, and the "Louie" star dismissed them as just that: rumors.

"I would say, 'This story about you forcing these women to watch you jerk off, what is that, is that true?' He goes, 'No, it's not true. It's not real. It's a rumor.' … That was the conversation."

He went on to say that C.K. represents a larger problem in comedy. "It's hard to understand that that power dynamic is real and it exists, because things have been the way they are for a long time," he said.

Well, at least somebody knows what's up.

Thanks, Maron.

Whatever: Kylie Jenner could be engaged

It's been awhile since we mentioned Kylie Jenner, but we suppose it's time to check in with the youngest member of the Kardashian-Jenner clan. Let's get this over with.

The 20-year-old shared a video on Snapchat of her driving her Bentley (of course) to Kim Kardashian West's baby shower (of course). And in the snap, she's sporting a rather excessive diamond ring which has people thinking — "Wait, is Jenner plotting a shotgun marriage? She so would."

A source confirmed to People that Jenner and her boyfriend, Travis Scott, are set to welcome a girl in February, officially igniting the nightmare fuel of our wildest dreams. But the social-media butterfly has largely kept mum on her accounts — and so far, she's had nothing to say about her new bling.

We are actually super-into this new Kylie Jenner, and we could get used to it. So, Kylie, keep it up! The less of you, the more mystery — and the less Kylie fatigue for us.

Can't say we're very invested in this.

‘Future Man’ doesn’t take itself too seriously

Why the new Hulu series makes for easy watching.

RACHAEL VAUGHAN CLEMMONS
@rachaelclemz
rachael.clemmons@metro.us

It’s up to these three to save the world. And the odds aren’t exactly looking great. HULU/ERIN SIMKIN “Future Man” is less “Preacher,” more “This is the End,” Seth Rogen- and Evan Goldberg-wise.

The series counts the two Canadians as its creators, and good thing: Not everyone can do a light take on an all-too-near dystopia. Premiering on Hulu on Nov. 14, “Future Man” is another entry into the time-travel genre, set apart mainly by its protagonist, Josh Futturman (Josh Hutchinson), a deadbeat janitor living with his parents. Futturman spends the majority of his time playing “Biotic Wars,” an unbeatable video game, and chronically masturbating, as one does. That is, until the day he beats the game.

That’s when two characters from “Biotic Wars,” Tiger (the delightful Eliza Coupe) and Wolf (“Preacher” star Derek Wilson) appear in his bedroom, hailing from the future and naming Josh their unlikely uppercase-S Savior. As you’ve probably guessed, shenanigans ensue. And, yes, many of them based in the sick wonders of various bodily fluids — blood, guts, and, well, let’s just call them unmentionables.

The actors are clearly having a lot of fun, and it shows. The series makes for an airy good time. There’s nothing wrong with it, exactly, but it’s missing a little oomph, despite very funny, very watchable performances from Hutchinson, Coupe and Wilson.

In fact, as charming as Hutchinson is as the loser turned unlikely hero, it’s Coupe and Wilson who shine the brightest, with their numerous barbaric ways feeling more tethered to the past than present. Watching them try to assimilate into 2017 is a consistent bright spot. And they’re able to mine a great deal of comedy out of so little — whether it’s snorting meth for the first time, cooking intricate “Barefoot Contessa”-worthy desserts or their insatiable thirst for murder and the consumption of sewer rats.

So if you’re looking for something enjoyable and easy to binge when you’re stuck on your family’s couch next week, “Future Man” is your best bet. But perhaps only if your family is good with Rogen and Goldberg’s trademark raunch. Otherwise, you’ll want to clear the room when — not really a spoiler — someone gets accidentally ejaculated on in the first episode. Totally up to you.

Why the world needs a

"An act of kindness is almost a revolutionary act."

MATT JUUL
@RunTheJuuls
matthew.juul@metro.us

Whether it's on a playground or in the White House, bullying seems to rear it ugly head in every aspect of society these days. However, "Wonder" is here to remind audiences that kindness does still exist in the world.

The film, which opens in theaters this week, stars Jacob Tremblay as Auggie Pullman, a smart, "Star Wars"-loving kid who embarks on his first day of school. Despite the support of his sister (Izabela Vidovic) and parents, played by Owen Wilson and Julia Roberts, Auggie is worried that the other students will pick on him because of his cranial facial differences.

Although his first foray into middle school is filled with tears, setbacks and hardships, Auggie ends up inspiring the people in his orbit by refusing to be a victim and always extending a kind hand to others.

"Despite having been met with so many moments of unkindness in his young life, he still only manages to show kindness to other people," says R.J. Palacio, who wrote the award-winning book that inspired the movie. "If a boy like Auggie Pullman can find it in himself to be kind to other people, so can I."

At a time when bullying is on the rise and politics continues to divide, Palacio and director Stephen Chbosky believe "Wonder" is hitting the big screen at the perfect moment. They hope the film will inspire viewers to also choose empathy and tolerance over hate.

"We can all agree that we're not going to mean our way out of this problem," Chbosky says. "Right now, an act of kindness is almost a revolutionary act."

"We need to be talking about kindness on every level, whether it's political, whether it's what we expect of our leaders, whether it's what we expect and hope for parents in the community," adds Pala-

cio. "They can not only change someone's day, they can really change someone's life with these little acts of kindness that just make the world better."

When it comes to fostering kindness in children, Palacio and Chbosky agree that both parents and teachers play vital roles. Educators, in particular, are at the forefront in "Wonder," as Mandy Patinkin's Mr. Tushman and "Hamilton" star Daveed Diggs' Mr. Browne constantly push their students to reach for the stars and choose the right paths.

Chbosky, who also wrote "The Perks of Being a Wallflower" and directed its film adaptation, notes that he never would've become a writer if it weren't for the great teachers and mentors in his life, including "Rebel Without a Cause" screenwriter Stewart Stern.

"It took that special teacher to recognize in me, 'I think that you can be a writer,'" Chbosky says. "Those teachers make all the difference."

While teachers can affect kids in profound ways, that doesn't mean moms and dads aren't as important. Palacio believes parents should set good examples for their children, as well as others.

"To quote a great woman, 'It does take a village,'" he says. "We're not just parenting our own kids in our communities, we're looking out for each other's kids as well."

"Wonder" opens in theaters Nov. 17.

Bridget Foy's Fire Relief Benefit is tomorrow

Over 30 local restaurants are participating.

JENNIFER LOGUE
jennifer.logue@metro.us

On Wednesday, Nov. 15, South Street Headhouse District, along with Queen Village Neighborhood Association, is hosting a fire relief benefit for Bridget Foy's employees, Saved Me Inc. animal rescue and the American Red Cross/ Red Paws. The event will run from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. under the Headhouse Square Shambles.

Owner of Twisted Tail, George Reilly, is helping organize the benefit and says: "I live opposite Bridget Foy's restaurant and watching what happened that night was an awful and sobering experience, looking at it with industry eyes. It makes you realize that one small thing, one mistake, can turn life upside down and affect so many people in the process."

He adds, "Philadelphia has a close-knit restaurant community. We see each other, spend time at each other's establishments and that creates a respect and a bond that connects the city together. I am really happy to see the response of not only the neighborhood restaurants, but that of the larger community throughout the city, reaching out to express their want to help and participate in this benefit event."

If you go:

How to beat erectile dysfunction

Via the Telehealth platform Roman, men can get diagnosed with and receive treatment for ED from the privacy of their homes.

KATE MOONEY
@yatinbrooklyn
kate.mooney@metro.us

The founders of Roman want to help men get tackle ED. The telehealth app is currently available in NY, FL, PA, WA, and CA. PROVIDED wellbeing

Erectile dysfunction isn't just an issue that befalls older men. The condition, defined by the National Institutes of Health as the inability to "get or keep an erection firm enough for satisfactory sexual intercourse," affects 30 million men every year. And while the risk of the condition does increase with age — with 40 percent of men affected at age 40, and 70 percent at age 70, according to the Cleveland Clinic — a 2013 study published in The Journal of Sexual Medicine found that one in four men seeking treatment for ED were under 40 years old.

Causes of erectile dysfunction

ED has several causes, from health-related lifestyle factors like anxiety, drinking, smoking, or obesity, to side effects from certain medications like antidepressants and blood pressure pills. It can also be an indicator of a more serious medical condition, including diabetes, heart disease and prostate cancer.

The stigma gets in the way of seeking treatment. Men, already half as likely as women to go to the doctor in a two year period, according to a 2014 CDC survey, are ashamed to discuss the issue with their primary care doctor, or even pick up meds at the pharmacy. According to a study from the Southern Illinois University School of Medicine, only 25 percent of men who received an ED diagnosis filled a prescription for it.

What ED means for men's health

"The strength of a man's erection is a really great indicator for their overall health," explains Zachariah Reitano, the co-founder of Roman, a new telehealth app which evaluates and treats men for ED.

He likens ED to having your check engine light on: a visibly recognizable sign that something's not right.

Reitano suffers from ED himself, first experiencing it at the age of 17, when it turned out to be the sign of a heart condition. Then the medication he received to treat his condition gave him ED as a side effect. The now 26-year-old considers himself Roman's first customer.

How Roman works

For $15, patients complete an online visit followed by a consultation from a physician. If the doctor determines it's "safe and appropriate," they'll prescribe ED medication — oral pde5 inhibitors, including Viagra and its generic, Sildenafil, Cialis and Levitra — and ship it out in discreet packaging. In some cases, they might find a patient unsuitable for telehealth and instead direct them straight to a doctor's office.

Reitano describes Roman's services as a complement to medical care, rather than a replacement. And he acknowledges it takes more than medication to solve ED.

"It's analogous to a knee brace," he explains. "You might need it each time to walk. It costs money and it by no mean fixes your knee." But it's the first step to getting your sexual health back.

MY 'MUST-KEEP' 25-AND-UNDER PHILADELPHIA ATHLETES

GLEN MACNOW

OPINION

Glen Macnow has been an outspoken voice in Philly sports for nearly three decades. @realglenmacnow

Not surprisingly, the Sixers' dynamic youthful tandem of Ben Simmons and Joel Embiid crack the top 3 of our list.. GETTY IMAGES

If you were Czar of Philadelphia Sports and had the power to keep 10 local players for the rest of their careers, who would you lock up?

Just a few rules. Each must be no older than 25, which takes out Fletcher Cox and Lane Johnson. No minor-league prospects. And no stacking, all four local teams must be represented. Okay? Here's my list:

1 Carson Wentz, 24, Eagles QB

The obvious choice. In his second season, Wentz is on pace for 41 TDs and 9 INTs. He could become our city's first MVP since 2007 (Jimmy Rollins) and the Eagles' first since 1960 (Norm Van Brocklin). When they erect his statue in South Philly someday, they'll have to build a smaller one nearby dedicated to GM Howie Roseman for getting Wentz.

2 Ben Simmons 21, Sixers PG

The last rookie before him to top 10 points, 5 assists and 5 rebounds in each of his first 10 games was … Oscar Robertson in 1960. Warriors coach Steve Kerr last week compared Simmons to Lebron James and Magic Johnson. I'll take either option.

3 Joel Embiid, 23, Sixers C

Do you realize Embiid has still played fewer than 70 games between college and the NBA? That says two things: a) His amazing skillset figures to improve, and, b) We still must worry about injury. Embiid is the most magnetic, impactful player in every game. Here's hoping we can eventually forget phrases like "load management."

4 Ivan Provorov, 20, Flyers D

He's a future Norris Trophy winner and Flyers captain. Ivan the Terrific excels in every aspect — creating crisp passes, stifling shooting lanes and clearing the zone. He's smart, tough and mature. The last Tier I obvious choice on this list.

5 Aaron Nola, 24, Phillies P

Some dismiss Nola as a mid-rotation starter, but I foresee a Cy Young candidate. Consider that in 2017 he was among the top-10 NL pitchers in WHIP, Ks per 9 innings and fewest homers per 9 innings. Durability is the only issue, and I think Nola grows into becoming a workhorse.

6 Derek Barnett, 21, Eagles DE

He's improving every week and has nine sacks/QB hits in the last four games. What impresses me is how Barnett's array of moves and strategies alter series to series. It suggests a young player eager to put in film work and practice time. Don't ever forget he was the prize for trading Sam Bradford.

7 Rhys Hoskins, 24, Phillies OF

Can we project a career based on 50 major league games? Well, Hoskins led the minors with 67 homers and 217 RBIs over 2016-17. Then he became the first to go yard 18 times in his first 34 big league games. Almost as impressive: In an era of free swingers, he worked 27 walks in those 50 games.

8 Nolan Patrick, 19, Flyers C

Sure, this one is entirely speculative and, yes, the kid already has an injury history. But Patrick was the top North American prospect in the 2017 draft because he's a smart, skilled player with no real flaws. He'll never lead the NHL in scoring, but he can become building block on a contender.

9 Tim Jernigan, 25, Eagles DT

Another brilliant Roseman move, he just re-upped for four years. With him, Barnett, Cox (26) and Brandon Graham (29), the Eagles could have the NFL's top D line going forward. Why the Ravens traded him here for a bag of beans remains a mystery.

10 Shayne Gostisbehere, Flyers D

I debated this last spot between him and Sean Couturier, two Flyers I project to have big upswings this season. Sure, Ghost has defensive lapses, but a point-per-game defenseman is a rare and wondrous thing in today's stingy NHL.

That's my list. Who makes yours?

Honorable Mention

Sean Couturier — 24, Flyers C

J.P. Crawford — 22, Phillies SS

Ronald Darby — 23, Eagles CB

Markelle Fultz — 19, Sixers PG

Dario Saric — 23, Sixers PF

Nick Williams — 24, Phillies OF

Jay Ajayi — 24, Eagles RB

Wild wild revenge for Flyers?

For the second straight game, the Flyers will face Minnesota when the puck drops at 8 p.m. (on NBCSP) Tuesday night. Philly will have revenge on the mind, as they faltered in a defensive struggle 1-0 at home against the Wild back on Saturday. GETTY IMAGES

Who are Eagles biggest threats?

The Eagles have seven games left this season, with four of their next five on the road. GETTY IMAGES

How much should Eagles fans worry about the Rams, Cowboys, Vikings, Seahawks and Saints?

LUKE MILLER
@MetroPhilly
sports@metro.us

The Eagles experienced just about the best bye week possible, witnessing losses from all three of their division opponents — their closest rival losing in especially dismal fashion. Now three games clear of those same Cowboys, it's natural to check out some of the NFC opponents that could prove most dangerous to the Eagles come playoff time. Let's check out the top five:

Saints
(7-2, NFC South leaders)

After their stomping of the Bills on Sunday, the Saints are tied with the Eagles for the longest winning streak in the NFL. Since losing their opening two games, including an embarrassing rout by the Vikings in the first Monday Night Football of the season, the Saints have won seven straight. Exactly one of those seven wins has been a one-score game, a 20-12 victory over the Bears. The average score during their win streak? 33-14.

Relieved of the burden of finding a role for Adrian Peterson, their rushing attack has come alive behind veteran Mark Ingram (672 rushing yards and 7 touchdowns) and rookie Alvin Kamara (790 total yards and 6 scores). Their offense is top five in scoring, passing, and rushing, and that might not surprise anyone familiar with the last decade of Saints football. The defense is another story. After beginning the season by providing Sam Bradford with a season's worth of highlight reels the defense, led by Cameron Jordan (7 sacks) and their first round draft pick Marshon Lattimore (2 interceptions) has molded itself into the fifth ranked scoring defense in the league.

Vikings
(7-2, NFC North leaders)

The Eagles' recent history with the Vikings is better. They're 3-0 against Minnesota in the playoffs, and the last two times they dispatched the Vikings in Round 1, they went on to a Conference Championship appearance and a Super Bowl.

This season, the Vikings started off winning behind inspired play by former Eagle Bradford and rookie running back Dalvin Cook. They've since lost both for the season but kept winning with backup quarterback Case Keenum and outstanding defense. Perhaps most of all their season is owed to improved offensive line play. Even after losing Peterson this off-season and Cook, they rank 10th in the league in rushing.

For much more on the Eagles, head to metro.us

Seahawks
(6-3, 2nd place in NFC West)

Were the Eagles to run into Seattle in the playoffs, it would be the franchises' first meeting there. It's not too surprising, since the Seahawks began their existence in the AFC. The two franchises have seen their fair share of regular-season matchups in recent seasons, and they'll share another Dec. 3 for "Sunday Night Football."

This season the Seahawks have relied more than ever on Russell Wilson to supply their offense. He quarterbacks the second ranked passing offense in the league, and is the team's leading rusher through a season beset by injuries and ineffectiveness at the running back position. The Legion of Boom will need to be re-envisioned without Richard Sherman for the remainder of this season following the corners Achilles tear this past Thursday night.

Rams
(7-2, NFC West leaders)

And now for the team a game up on the Seahawks in the West, the Rams. One of the league's biggest surprises, the Rams have gone from 4-12 and the league's lowest scoring offense in 2016 to contenders and the highest scoring team in 2017. The Eagles are familiar with the architect of this turnaround: former Washington offensive coordinator and 31-year-old rookie head coach Sean McVay.

The development McVay provided Kirk Cousins is now turned on Jared Goff, and the first overall pick a year ago is finally taking some of the attention back from Carson Wentz and Dak Prescott. He's thrown 16 touchdowns and just four interceptions after posting five and seven respectively as a rookie. If he and the Rams can beat the Seahawks in their Dec. 17th rematch, the division should be theirs.

Any potential playoff matchup will be previewed when the Eagles travel to Los Angeles Dec. 10th.

Cowboys
(5-4, 2nd place in NFC East)

The biggest threat in the Eagles own division looked a lot less threatening against the Falcons Sunday afternoon. They carried a three game win streak into their first weekend without Ezekiel Elliott, but it didn't go well. With starting left tackle Tyron Smith also missing the game, the Cowboys allowed eight sacks and lost 27-7 in Atlanta.

They'll have to fix that pass blocking quickly, with the Eagles fearsome pass rush visiting Dallas this week for the first of two matchups yet to come this season. Later this year, the season finale between the two could be another division settling game for the ages, or, with the Eagles threatening to move four games ahead of the Cowboys this weekend, it could end up simply meaningless.

LEGAL NOTICES

Notice of an Intent to Remediate to Statewide Health and Background Standards

(Sections 302(e)(1)(ii), 303(h)(1)(ii), 304(n)(1)(i), and 305(c)(1))

Pursuant to the Land Recycling and Environmental Remediation Standards Act, the act of May 19, 1995, P.L. 4, No. 1995-2., notice is hereby given that The Vertex Companies, Inc., on behalf of Sears Logistics Services, Inc. n/b/a Innovel Solutions, Inc. by their agent Sears Holdings Management Corporation (collectively herein, "Sears"), has submitted to the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Protection a Notice of Intent to Remediate for the property located at 3820 North 2nd Street, Philadelphia, Philadelphia County. This Notice of Intent to Remediate states that the site formerly operated as Logistics Services Terminal Freight Handling Facility. Site soils were found to be contaminated with No. 2 heating oil related compounds. The soil and groundwater has been investigated and remedial actions have been conducted. The soil and groundwater now meets the Statewide Health Standards for the contaminants identified and the Background Standard for MTBE. Sears plans to demonstrate attainment of the Statewide Health Standards and Background Standard at the site.

Aries Emotions will skyrocket when dealing with relationship issues. Stay calm, use your imagination and look for solutions that will benefit everyone involved.

Taurus Don't waste time arguing with someone who doesn't share your beliefs. Consider what you can do to make your life and future better.

Gemini Getting out and doing things that help to relieve stress will clear your mind and give you a chance to rethink your next move. Plan your actions carefully.

Cancer Don't let personal situations get to you. Concentrate on your work, personal growth and self-awareness. Now is not the time to get into a sensitive discussion.

Leo Plan a short trip, or get together with someone who understands you and share your thoughts and plans. Initiate a change before someone takes over.

Virgo Partnerships should be your priority. Discussing your life and what you want to achieve will help you gain support and encouragement from someone special.

Libra Channel your emotions and energy into something concrete. A plan that will help you get ahead or improve a situation at home would be a good place to start.

Scorpio A domestic change looks promising. Explore new ideas and develop plans that will help you get ahead. If you collaborate with someone, good things will happen.

Sagittarius Consider your options and get your facts straight before you make a move. Don't let anyone charm you into undertaking something that will be stressful.

Capricorn Stay calm and do what's expected of you. If you lash out or let your emotions get the better of you, it will affect the decisions you make. Think matters through.

Aquarius A good idea can turn into a lucrative pastime if you take time to develop and promote what you have to offer. Take care of your health and avoid excess.

Pisces Be careful when dealing with individuals who tend to ask for too much. Be prepared to offer solutions that don't involve your time or physical effort. EUGENIA LAST
